Alison has attended the Goodwill games at Dexter since she was a freshman. She doesn't have a favorite teacher because she loves all of them. Alison's favorite highschool memory is being with her classmates. Her advice to underclassmen is to do the best you can and be the best person you can! Her role model throughout high school was her dad. She is very happy that graduation is coming up in the spring. After graduation, she will miss seeing her classmates and teachers.

Greek Week

Last week was Woodland Middle School's Greek Week. Recently, the seventh grade students have been learning about the ways and culture of Ancient Greece in Ms. Addie Raines' World History class. This is the thirteenth year that students have participated in Greek Week to experience what life was like during that time. Since its start, Greek Week has grown tremendously. It originally was only one day but now it spans for over a week.

This activity is a way for the students to be interactive in their learning. The teacher that started this tradition, Ms. Raines, says, "Greek Week is a time when 7th graders are transported to another land, and experience Greek culture. Students listen to Greek music, participate in Olympic events, eat Greek foods, wear Greek clothing, create Greek battle props, learn the Greek language, enjoy Greek fables, and they become an ancient Spartan or Athenian."
